Sing your heart Out is a documentary on the lives of people who come together to sing as an unusual choir in Hackney, presented by British Council in partnership with Social. These singing sessions are therapeutic and stand as a mode of catharsis for many people suffering from mental health issues. These sessions will help the volunteers to boost self-confidence and reduce stress. At present, the documentary exhibits the importance of channelising stress, depression and acute mental health issues out of lives. The award-winning documentary has been filmed by camera person Neil, directed by Peter Akar and is produced by BBC International. WHEN: May 29 WHERE: Social, Haus Khas TIME: 7 pm

Air Pollution and its effect on health, a panel discussion followed by Grey – an art show for clean air. The exhibition will showcase paintings, sculptures and installations in order to create awareness about the alarming condition of the poor air quality. The airborne particles and toxic chemicals that make up the smog have choked the 19 million residents of the metropolitan area, where merely breathing the air was, at its worst, like smoking 50 cigarettes in a day. The participating artists include Anita Trehan, Dr Balesh Jindal, Dr Nishit Jain, Dr Deepti Jain, Nupur Kundu, Parul Mehra, Deepshalini, Shweta Zharotia, Rakesh Zharotia, Jai Zharotia, Lalit Pant, Kirti Tandon, Rachna Bhati, Rosy Singh and Atul Kumar.

WHEN: Till June 2 WHERE: Shridharani Art Gallery, Triveni Kala Sangam, Mandi House
